Police appeal as brazen thieves steal jewellery from elderly man

'These individuals could target other elderly and vulnerable people in the area'

By Tommy Wathen
newsdesk@essexlive.news

ESSEX Police are appealing for information about a distraction burglary in Harlow last week.

Two men knocked at the home of a 77-year-old man on Monday, September 18 at around 3.20pm and insisted that his garden fence needed painting.

Whilst one of the suspects was in conversation with the victim, the other entered the man's living room and removed some items of jewellery from the table.

Both suspects then left the scene.

The suspects have been described as being white, aged in their 30s and around 5ft 10ins tall with short brown hair.

One of the suspects wore grey tracksuit bottoms and a green bomber jacket and the other wore jeans and a dark blue or black bomber jacket.

Appeal

Investigating officer Pc Carlo Marchione, of Harlow CID, said: "This was a particularly brazen burglary where the suspects have knocked at the home of their elderly victim's home in the middle of the day and have posed as painters. One of the suspects has then continued to engage the man in conversation while the other has searched through his home and stolen valuable jewellery.

"These individuals could target other elderly and vulnerable people in the area and I urge anyone with information to Harlow CID on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111."

The robbers distracted the man while robbing his house

Police with guns called in after road brawl

THREE people have been charged after armed police were called to a brawl in Harlow on Friday.

Jamil Khan, 23, of Sorbus Road, Broxbourne, was charged with possession of firearms offences, and Raymond Aylmer, 20, of Melbourne Court, Waltham Cross, and Kyle Gilbert, 18, of Burley Road, Bishop's Stortford, were charged with possession of an offensive weapon.

They are due to appear at Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Tuesday, November 7.

Armed officers responded to calls from members of the public who reported that a firearm was seen during an argument between a group of people in Post Office Walk at 3.20pm.

Weapons

Three people were found at the scene to be carrying weapons, two knives and a handgun.

A man was gassed in the same road and suffered life-changing injuries just a few weeks ago, and last month a Turkish barber's towards the rear of Broad Walk was targeted in a suspected petrol bombing.

On July 23 a man in his 20s was stabbed after a fight near Post Office Walk.

On May 28 a 29-year-old man suffered a 15cm cut to his neck after being slashed in an horrific attack outside Twenty One Bar.

Cyclist is seriously injured in crash involving a lorry

Man arrested after victim airlifted to hospital having been trapped

By Michael Mutch
michael.mutch@essexlive.news

A MAN has been arrested after a cyclist was left in a life-threatening condition after he was involved in an accident with a lorry.

The 59-year-old man from Scotland has been arrested on suspicion of causing serious injury by dangerous driving and is currently in custody for questioning.

Emergency services were called to Edinburgh Way at about 1.40pm on Wednesday, September 20, after reports that a cyclist was trapped under a vehicle after a collision with a lorry.

Treated

East of England Ambulance Service (EEAST) confirmed that the 59-year-old cyclist from Harlow was airlifted to hospital to be treated for serious head injuries.

They said: "An ambulance crew, two rapid response vehicles, our Hazardous Area Response Team (HART), an ambulance officer and an air ambulance from Essex and Herts Air Ambulance Trust (EHAAT) were dispatched to reports that someone was trapped underneath the vehicle.

"At the scene they assessed and treated a man for injuries to his head, chest and leg. The patient was flown to The Royal London Hospital in a serious condition."

Essex Police advised motorists to avoid the A414 after the incident. They released a statement confirming that a man had been arrested.

It said: "A 57-year-old man from Scotland has been arrested on suspicion of causing serious injury by dangerous driving and is currently in custody for questioning."

"The road is partially closed at the junction of Edinburgh Way and River Way and this is expected to remain the case until at least 7pm while investigation work is carried out.

"Drivers are urged to avoid the area and are thanked for their patience. Any witnesses who have dash cam footage or saw what happened are asked to call contact the Serious Collision Investigation Unit on 01245 240590 or email collisionappeal@essex.pnn.police.uk."

HUGE BANG WAS HEARD

A WITNESS has described the moments following the crash that saw a cyclist being airlifted to hospital.

The crash, which occurred in Edinburgh Way, Harlow, left a man with serious head injuries after he was trapped underneath the lorry.

Emergency services attended the scene and closed the surrounding area for the air ambulance to land.

Shannon West, who works nearby, said: "A colleague said he was youngish."

"I heard a huge bang, looked out the window and the lorry just stopped and the guy got out, then the sirens were crazy."

"Traffic is gridlocked, the police have shut down the road and are turning traffic around."

"The helicopter has just left and roads are slowly reopening but there is so much traffic."

Caught on camera, the lorry stuck at the level crossing

Lorry driver caused £23k damage to level crossing

Bulgarian jailed after he tried to drive through barriers despite warning

By Hannah Kane

hannah.kane@essexlive.news

CCTV of a Bulgarian lorry driver shows the moment he carelessly drove over an Essex level crossing as the barriers were descending.

Tencho Hristov, of Pelham Road, Lincolnshire, appeared before Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday, September 14, where he was sentenced to eight months imprisonment.

He had been found guilty of one count of obstructing any engine or carriage using the railway, a wilful omission or neglect, and one count of failing to report a road accident.

The incident, which occurred on June 21 of this year, damaged the level crossing adjacent to Roydon station in Essex.

At about 10.45am, Hristov approached the level crossing and the lights began illuminating which indicated the barriers were about to lower. Hristov, however, proceeded to drive over the crossing despite the warnings. This resulted in the barriers becoming trapped between the driver's cab and the trailer.

The train tracks were then dangerously obstructed by his vehicle.

Damage

Hristov jumped out of his cab and then walked around the vehicle for three minutes, failing to alert the emergency services to a potentially impending disaster. Eventually, he returned to his vehicle and drove forward, causing damage to the barriers.

He drove away from the area and did not report the incident to police.

The cost of repairing the level crossing, as well as delays caused to services is estimated to be more than £23,000.

Inspector Steve Webster, from

British Transport Police, said: "Because of Hristov's recklessness, there was a very real risk that the approaching train could have collided with the truck. Instead of calling the emergency services – like a sensible person would – or even moving his vehicle to safety, he remained on the tracks, inspecting his vehicle, when a train could have collided with him at any moment."

"It is difficult to understand why road users continue to ignore the warning signs at level crossings. Trains travel at extremely high speed and impatience can have serious consequences. I would remind motorists to obey warning lights and do not drive over the crossing when the barriers are in action."

"I welcome this tough sentence that Hristov was handed as hopefully it will deter anyone else from thinking they can illegally drive over a level crossing. Thankfully, signallers were able to alert the driver of the approaching train before any serious injury was caused. A disaster was very narrowly avoided."

The 30-year-old got an eight month jail term and a two-year and eight months driving ban.

Delight as missing man found

A MISSING man from Harlow has been found after Essex Police launched an appeal.

Ben Arnold, 20, was last seen at about 5.30pm on Sunday, September 24, and his family and police were concerned for him.

He was described as being 5ft 10in tall, of medium build with short brown hair worn in a parting.

The appeal to find Ben was launched on Monday, and he was found on Tuesday.

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "Great news. Ben Arnold, 20, who had been missing in Harlow has now been found."

Victim of balcony fall in hospital

A HARLOW man was taken to hospital after he fell from a balcony.

Police were contacted with reports a man had fallen from the balcony at an address in Spinning Wheel Mead, Harlow, at about 11.10am on Saturday.

The man was taken to hospital but his injuries are not life-threatening.

Police have concluded their inquiries into the circumstances surrounding the incident and are satisfied there were no suspicious circumstances.

GUILTY VERDICT: Family of brave young victim speak out about her ordeal at ‘We truly hope that he has a bad time in prison’ says angry mum of girl abused by a paedophile teacher

By Observer reporter
observer@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

THE parents of a little girl sexually abused by a teacher from Great Dunmow have said they hope her attacker dies in prison and will show there is “still good in this world”.

Edward Ryan, 67, of Venmore Drive, was jailed for four years on Monday of last week after an earlier trial resulted in a hung jury.

After previously denying the four counts against him, dating back to September and October 2015, his victim was forced to go through the horrific ordeal of giving evidence in court.

The victim, who cannot be named for legal reasons, cried and clutched a cuddly toy as she answered questions relating to the string of attacks at an Essex school, which cannot be named for legal reasons.

Her mother, a 45-year-old marketing executive, from Bishop's Stortford, said: “She was reluctant at first because she didn't like to speak about it but we knew we had to get justice.

Protect

“We were all very upset after the hung jury but we knew we had to keep trying. We were not afraid any more.

“We didn't force her but we said that it's our duty and her duty to protect any other children who might have gone through what she has gone through.

“After that she wanted to do it and was very responsible.

“We can't really express just how hard it was for our daughter and she actually expected all the grown-ups in the court to protect her.

When defence lawyer Sasha Bailey was questioning her, I know she was only doing her job, but there was just some moments where I thought ‘was that really necessary?’

“Our daughter has four close friends, she is not a girly-girl but she had a healthy number of friends and in court, we heard how she had no friends and that she was intimidating to other children.”

During the re-trial, the jury took just 45 minutes to find Edward Ryan guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court.

“As soon as I heard the guilty verdict I almost fell and I ran out smashing open all the doors just shouting for my husband.

“A number of people probably thought I was the one who got convicted.

Shaking

“My hands were shaking and eventually I found him and he was just sitting in the witness room.

“I was running down the corridor and grabbing the woman who was looking after us just asking her ‘where is my husband?’

“I think we were more relieved that Ryan couldn't be able to work with children again and that his reputation has been destroyed.”

Her father, 68, added: “It was just a massive relief that justice was served. I was afraid he would have got six months or something like that so we were relatively happy with the sentence.

“We would not tolerate this treatment of any child but our girl? He f with the wrong girl and the wrong family.”

Since the ordeal, their daughter has suffered from recurring nightmares of the paedophile turning to her, smiling and saying ‘We can start our ‘lessons’ again’.

The heartbroken parents explained: “Our daughter had a very difficult time.

“She suffered from nightmares, she couldn't sleep and she was afraid of even moving around the house.

“Whenever she sees people kissing or hugging on television she says it disgusting and we have to keep saying to her it's normal. “We don't whether this is just her age or if this is a backlash

Firefighters are called in to deal with oil spill after road is closed following two-car crash

FIREFIGHTERS had to stop oil from running into the drains after a crash near Bishop's Stortford which has caused a road to be shut for hours.

The A1184 was shut between Spellbrook, a hamlet, and Sawbridgeworth after a two-car collision for hours. The incident was first reported to the AA at 5.20pm last Wednesday.

Sawbridgeworth Fire said on Twitter: “Crew attended car fire following RTC at Thorley Wash, luckily no one trapped & no fire.

Thorley Wash is a large nature reserve just off the A1184.

Police diverted traffic away from the area while the road was closed.

Pictures tweeted by Sawbridgeworth Fire showed a substance leaking out of one car, which had damage to its front bumper, and a second car which appeared to have collided with a lamppost.

Bishop's Stortford Police tweeted on Tuesday last week (September 19) that there would be speed enforcement checks on the A1184.

hands of 67-year-old and having to give evidence in court in retrial

Paedophile Edward Ryan was found guilty and jailed last week

Chelmsford Crown Court, where the trial took place

"We were entitled to trust this man to teach our child. We were so proud that the school wanted to challenge her, we just thought it was wonderful and he seemed like a nice man and our daughter did like him.

"She was missing her grandparents and I think she saw him as a grandfather figure.

"We just thought it was great that he was supporting her and pushing her.

"All the nice memories of her at that school have been tarnished, her room was full of certificates but how can we look at that now? "We will carry on but that part of her childhood has almost been blacked out."

The family hope that by speaking out about the horrific ordeal, it will encourage anyone else going through something similar will come forward.

Her mother continued: "Our girl has had all the love and support and protection she needs.

She's special.

"She has always been close to her father but her sharing what happened with her dad just shows what a close bond they have.

"That might be different for a child that has a difficult family situation or does not have a close bond like we do or is afraid that no one will believe them.

Horrible

"If we get just one person to report it then at least something good has come out of this horrible situation.

"At least we can show there's still good in this world against the evil that that pervert caused.

"People need to know the dangers, they could be right next to us, and we have to be so careful.

"He was described as a man of church and a family man and we were scared of the verdict because the jury are just normal people. They've only met our daughter for 45 minutes, we were really worried.

"We don't care about his supposed health problems but hope that he dies in jail and saves the tax-payers' cost of locking him up.

"But we can say we have done it, we have gone through the difficult times and we will carry on.

"We want to thank the public, all the officials, the witnesses, the judge and especially to the jury. All of them believed our little girl.

"We would also like to thank the CPS for pursuing the case.

"People like that do not regret, he'll only regret that he got caught. We will never forgive him for what he has done, he is a vile pervert.

"We truly hope he has a bad time in prison.

"It will never leave us but hopefully, now we know justice has been served, we can move on from these horrible two years."

Approval for new primary school

PLANNING permission has been granted for a new primary school in Bishop's Stortford.

Located off Farnham Road opposite the Red White and Blue Meadows, the school will provide almost 700 school places to meet demand from the Bishop's Stortford North development, now known as Stortford Fields.

The site, an area of grassland formerly used as allotments, is owned by Bishop's Stortford Town Council, but county council documents state that the land will be "acquired in due course".

The school will consist of a single, L-shaped, two-storey building with playing pitches, hard and soft play areas and car parking.

Demand

Hertfordshire County Council estimates that the new residential developments to the north of the town – including about 2,200 homes in the Stortford Fields plans alone – will create demand for four forms of entry.

Permission has already been granted for a two form-entry school and the latest school would provide another three forms of entry. It would have a capacity of 630 pupils from Reception to Year 6, plus 45 nursery places.

Funding will come from the builders of Stortford Fields.

TWENTY ONE BAR ATTACK: Judge condemns 'mindless, vicious and brutal'

Thugs are jailed for 23 years after cruel beating

By James Gregory
james.gregory@essexlive.news

FIVE men have been jailed for a total of 23-and-a-half-years for a "disgraceful and shocking" attack on a 'twerking' reveller in Harlow after a birthday party night out at Twenty One Bar.

The young men will face lengthy prison terms as a result of committing GBH on Lewis Criddle after angering one of the defendants for 'twerking' on him.

Luke Martin, 20, of Joyners

Field, was sentenced to a total of nine years in prison for GBH with intent.

Craig Quennel, 22, of Long Banks, was sentenced to eight years behind bars for the same offence.

Blow

Sean Stuart, 32 years of age and an outsider to the group, pleaded guilty on the first day of his trial last year. He will face three years in prison after landing the blow that knocked Mr Criddle to the ground.

Luke Martin was sentenced to a total of nine years in prison

Meanwhile both Jordan Hinton, 20, of The Briars and Daniel Lockett, 21, of Little Brays, were sentenced for violent disorder.

Hinton will spend two years in a young offender's institute while Lockett will face 18 months behind bars.

The sentence related to an incident that happened on September 4, 2015.

On the night of the incident, Martin was ejected from Twenty

One Bar after an altercation with Mr Criddle in which it is alleged that Martin's shirt was ripped.

The group then congregated outside the bar and were joined by Stuart, who is around ten years older than the group of boys and was not known to them.

CCTV footage showed the group approaching Mr Criddle, deliberately targeting him and knocking him unconscious as he left the club in Market Square at around 3.15am. Both Martin and Quennel continued to beat him while he lay unconscious on the ground.

Craig Quennel was sentenced to eight years

Witnesses

It was not until two witnesses stepped in to stand in between the attackers that the assault stopped.

Mr Criddle, who was not present in court, was taken to hospital where he was treated for multiple injuries including a displaced cheekbone, fractured nose and fluid on the brain.

The court heard how Stuart "enjoyed" knocking Mr Criddle to the floor, with CCTV footage showing the group gloating and hand-shaking.

Helen Compton, prosecuting, brought to attention the psychological affects this had had on Mr Criddle and his family as well.

Sean Stuart will face three years in prison which was read out in court, she said:

"I was previously happy go lucky – now I am a shell of my previous life.

"I was scared of what had happened and scared of what could happen.

"I was embarrassed by what had happened.

"I hope they [the attackers] never experience anything like this themselves."

Mr Criddle has also reported frequent memory loss since the incident more than two years ago.

Mindless

Judge Jonathan Seely said Martin had 'mustered the troops' to attack Mr Criddle.

In his sentencing remarks, he said: "This was a mindless, vicious and brutal attack by your group."

Jordan Hinton will spend two years in a young offender's institute

"Lewis Criddle was doing no harm whatsoever."

As Martin cried in the docks, Judge Seely added: "You believed he had twerked you, your shirt was ripped and you left the club.

"The coward that you are gathered your numbers – you were clearly agitated and out for revenge.

"You were the ringleader, it was your grievance and your decision to attack him."

"Whether the homophobic comment you made was the principle reason for the attack is unclear, but the remark was made by you.

"It was pre-meditated, there has been no evidence of remorse apart from regret for the situation you find yourself in. The offence is so serious that taking into account your good character and age, I cannot reduce the sentence below nine years."

Judge Seely also added that

Daniel Lockett will face 18 months behind bars

each group member "played their respective parts in the attack."

The group were out for Craig Quennel's brother Luke's birthday party.

Pleas

All six men had previously pleaded not guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on April 25, 2016.

Speaking after sentencing, investigating officer De Leo Fordham, of Harlow CID, said: "All five men played a part in a vicious and an unprovoked attack on a man who innocently bumped into his attackers while dancing during a night out with friends.

"I would like to praise Lewis Criddle for his courage through the investigation and trial after his attackers denied any involvement. They have not shown any remorse for their actions and will now face a lengthy period locked away in a prison cell."

Mum's fright as rare wasp spider makes itself at home

'My son was quite excited and was showing photos at his school'

By William Mata

newsdesk@hertsexnews.co.uk

A MOTHER-OF-THREE had a fright when a rare wasp spider found its way into her home.

Anita Kalkan, 37, of Little Parndon, Harlow, sought help from friends online after discovering the European breed, which she thought could be deadly.

But thankfully for her and her three children aged seven, four and one, the spiders are not aggressive, although can give humans a potentially painful sting.

Poisonous

Mrs Kalkan said: "I was worried it might be poisonous so I wanted to find out for sure so I decided to post the picture in a Facebook group. The spider is still here for some reason. It's exactly in the same position as it was yesterday.

"I was a bit worried as I read that they can bite. My son was quite excited and was showing the photos at his school."

The wasp spider was first seen in the UK in 1920 and has only been reported in southern England.

A post mortem was carried out and the coroner is awaiting a toxicology report. The inquest has been adjourned until October 26 at 12noon.

Harlow performer 'honoured' to be elected on to the council of famous group

That's just magic! Andy is selected by society of the world's best magicians

By Michael Mutch
michael.mutch@essexlive.news

MAGICIANS should never reveal their secrets, but this Harlow magician has got one that he just can't keep quiet.

Andy Clockwise, 47, has been elected on to the council of The Magic Circle, a famous magical society of the world's greatest magicians that was founded in London in 1905.

It has a worldwide membership of nearly 1,500 magicians and includes some of the best in the craft, such as Dynamo and David Copperfield. Even Prince Charles has been elected.

Incredible

Andy has described it as a dream come true and said it was "an honour" to be elected to the council after 20 years in the industry.

He said: "When I first got into magic, becoming a member of The Magic Circle was something that I could only dream of.

"Now, 20 years after joining, I'm on the council and it's an incredible feeling. I'm sincerely honoured that members voted for me to represent them on their council and I'm super excited to be able to play a part in the future of the most magical club in the world"

Mr Clockwise's interest in magic began in unusual circumstances.

Instead of the traditional story of being given a magic set as a child, it was actually the popular children's construction toy Meccano that set him on his way.

"I always loved making things," said Mr Clockwise.

"I wanted to know how things worked and that is what interested me in magic."

Mr Clockwise has been a regular performer at The Magic Circle's public events and has performed for stars of stage and screen.

He also lectures for magicians all over the UK and has invented tricks used by magicians across the world.

Mr Clockwise is also a regular visitor to the children's ward at Harlow Hospital every month, performing magic for children and making balloons for a children's charity called Pod.

He said: "I've been one of their entertainers for over 17 years. It's very rewarding and the children enjoy my visits."

Frustrated commuter slams 'incredibly poor' bus service

Woman says daily journey hit by delays and unreliability

By William Mata
newsdesk@hertssexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW woman has blasted the "incredibly poor" bus service to Epping, which she feels is frequently delayed and unreliable.

Janet Cohen, 54, of Church Langley, gets the 418 and 419 TrustyBus service from Potter Street to Epping where she changes on her daily commute to central London. But she finds the 20-minute gap between buses too much and is considering asking her husband to drive her to work after regularly being forced to wait 50 minutes.

Busiest

Mrs Cohen said: "At the busiest time of day there is a 20-minute gap and that can easily turn into a half-an-hour gap."

"Sometimes the bus does not turn up at all. It is incredibly poor."

Mrs Cohen, a mother of one, said the bus service was much better in Hatfield, but has been unable to have effective correspondence with TrustyBus.

She continued: "When TrustyBus took over from SM in May 2016 they provided a half-hourly Church Langley to Epping service and after four months that was cut to hourly then after another four months it was cancelled completely.

"Since then the rest of the service has been reduced twice. "There is no competition and TrustyBus can do what they want."

TrustyBus was approached for a response but had not supplied one by the time we went to press.

Developer director hits back at 'charade' claims over Gilston Park Estate vision

10,000 homes plan: 'We want people to engage'

By William Mata
newsdesk@hertssexnews.co.uk

THE group director of a developer looking to build 10,000 homes near Harlow has hit back at claims their consultations are a 'charade'.

Mary Parsons, of Places for People, said there is full engagement with village communities about Gilston Park Estate after Stop Harlow North leader Spike Hughes said residents are being left in the dark.

Should the development get the green light, thousands of homes will be built on green belt land around Eastwick, Gilston and Hunsdon.

Workshops

The long-term project was previously known as Harlow North.

Ms Parsons said: "I think we have been involved in the project for the past ten years and we have consistently tried to engage with the community."

"We have spoken to the parish councils and we have held a series of workshops. We have answered questions about infrastructure delivery."

"We held an event for local people that more than 150 attended."

Places for People held meetings last weekend in Harlow, High Wych and Hunsdon which were advertised locally.

Mary Parsons has hit back after criticism of the Gilston Park consultation

A full press statement was sent two days before the first consultation.

Earlier this week Mr Hughes told a reporter that consultations were a "charade," and the details were unlikely to change after any engagements.

He said: "They are building on green belt land and there is a lack of infrastructure supporting it."

"We have not seen any plans."

Ms Parsons felt last weekend's events were "well attended," and added that she answered a number of questions, refuting Mr Hughes' claim people were "left in the dark".

She said: "We know it is a sensitive development because of the scale. We know that people will oppose it, but we want to do what is right and we want to work with local people."

"We are at a very early stage."

"I have been there for every moment of every event, some people we were talking to for a long time. We have had some constructive feedback."

"We want people to engage," she said.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon and Harlow council leader Jon Clempner have both expressed support for the project.

In January then-housing minister Gavin Barwell promised £1.4 million of government funding to deliver three garden towns nationally, one of which was suggested to be Gilston Park Estate.

Ms Parsons identified infrastructure and the issue of Princess Alexandra Hospital as two of the most expressed concerns.

Infrastructure

Mr Hughes said the £600 million infrastructure investment promised by Places for People had not been fully explained.

Ms Parsons said she had never been asked by Stop Harlow North's leader how the developer would deliver the infrastructure. "He is making these comments, but he is not engaging in the process," she said.

She added: "The £600 million figure has not been plucked from the air, it has been costed. We have looked at how we are going to deliver these things. We have put forward a lot of detail."

Places for People could submit the planning application next year.

Harlow couple hurt in Cornwall tragedy

Horrific Atlantic Highway crash killed two people

By Chris Matthews
newsdesk@hertssexnews.co.uk

A MAN and a woman from Harlow were caught up in a serious three-car crash in Cornwall that killed two people and left several others suffering serious injuries.

A man and a woman died following the accident, which happened shortly before 4pm on Saturday, September 23, on the A39 Atlantic Highway between Helstone and Camelford.

It involved a grey Jaguar, a blue BMW and a Nissan Qashqai.

Paramedics

Among those involved were a 65-year-old man and 59-year-old woman from Harlow, who were in the Qashqai.

They received minor injuries and were treated at the scene by paramedics.

Devon and Cornwall Police say the driver of a Jaguar car died at the scene as a result of the injuries he suffered.

The grey Jaguar, containing three local men, was travelling in the direction of Camelford when it was involved in a collision with a blue BMW, with a man and a woman inside, on a left-hand bend.

The Jaguar then hit the Nissan Qashqai.

The Jaguar was being driven by a 30-year-old man from the Helstone area, who died at the scene.

His front seat passenger was a 40-year-old man from Delabole and in the rear was a 15-year-old boy from Port Isaac. The passengers were airlifted to Derriford Hospital in Plymouth and said to be "poorly, but stable".

The crash was so serious that Cornwall Air Ambulance, along with both Devon's Air Ambulances, landed at the scene. It was also reported that the Coastguard rescue helicopter was requested to assist.

The driver of the blue BMW was a 70-year-old male from Sevenoaks, Kent, and the front seat passenger was his 70-year-old wife. Both were airlifted to Derriford Hospital, where the woman died on arrival. Her husband has life-threatening injuries.

Fifth by-election candidate

UKIP's candidate for a Harlow by-election has pledged to "speak up" for the "run down" Toddbrook ward.

Patsy Long has become the fifth and final candidate to state their intention ahead of the vote today (Thursday).

The 66-year-old grandmother has been a member of UKIP since 2011 and her son Dan Long is a Harlow councillor for Bush Fair.

She said: "I walked round Toddbrook and saw how run down parts are. Bushes and trees are badly maintained, play areas are left to rot and the council has been neglecting the people of this area for too long.

"They deserve a good service from Patsy Long hopes to win Toddbrook their councillors and I will do my utmost to give this to them.

"People need someone who is not afraid to speak up for them and who will listen to their concerns."

The awards evening at The City Pavilion in Romford promises to be a night to remember

Stansted leads from the front sponsoring top team category

Airport wants to be seen championing businesses

WITH nominations now closed for this year's Essex Business Excellence Awards, nominated businesses face an anxious wait to see whether they have made the final shortlist.

With 14 awards on offer across a range of categories, businesses of all sizes will gather at the City Pavilion in Romford for a night of celebration on November 29. With champagne and canapés on offer to guests, the evening will acknowledge the outstanding contribution the nominated businesses have made to the wider business community.

With nominations now closed, the judging process is set to get underway, with the winner of each category decided by a sponsor. Sponsoring the Leadership Team of the Year category is the country's fourth largest airport – Stansted. The award is given to the business which demonstrates fantastic leadership abilities, and who has inspired its workforce to success.

With over 25 million passengers using the airport to fly to 190 destinations across the world, Stansted is also acting as the award's headline sponsor. Chris Wiggan, Stansted Airport's head of external affairs, outlined the airport's reason behind sponsoring.

"One of the reasons we get involved in a lot of these awards is because of that community element. Here at Stansted we want to be seen as a leader in the local business community and so

PART OF M.A.G

Stansted Airport is sponsoring the Leadership Team award
it seemed like a perfect and apt category to sponsor."

He continued: "I think it's really important that the local community see Essex as a place where you can do business, there is a big talent pool here with two international airports and two major ports. It's important that businesses can showcase what they do to attract other businesses to the region, not just in the UK, but internationally too."

Chris also discussed the contribution that Stansted Airport makes to Essex's wider business community: "We are the biggest single site employer in the east of England with 12,000 people. So, we are a key driver of productivity, jobs and economic growth. We contribute around a £1 billion to the local economy every year, these are in terms of salaries, investments and other areas.

"We have a significant supply chain and about 45 per cent of our supplies come from within a 50-mile radius as we try to use local resources whenever possible. Seventy five per cent of our employees also live locally so we feel we have a very strong economic footprint and a lot of businesses set up close to the airport, giving them flexibility to travel around the world."

A night of champagne and success

ON WEDNESDAY, November 29, The City Pavilion in Romford will host the glittering awards ceremony.

A highly sought-after venue for weddings, banquets and conferences, The City Pavilion is sure to provide a stunning backdrop for the much-anticipated event.

Kicking off proceedings will be a champagne reception which commences at 6.30pm and sets the scene for a fantastic night.

Guests will then be escorted to their tables where they will enjoy a three-course gourmet meal before settling down for the award presentations. The proceedings will be lead seamlessly by event hosts comedian Mark Dolan and television presenter Lucy Nicholls with each of the awards presented by the category sponsor.

Performance

Throughout the evening, a host of entertainment will also be on offer, including a live performance from the Britain's Got Talent contestant and awe-inspiring magician and illusionist, Jamie Raven.

Fundraising activities on the night will present an opportunity for all guests to help raise funds for an extremely worthy charity. HOME AGAIN (12A)

BEAUTIFUL, rich people with adorable offspring try to convince us that being single is the end of their privileged worlds in first-time director Hallie Meyers-Shyer's romantic comedy.

Home Again is cut from the same luxurious fabric as The Holiday and It's Complicated, films penned by Nancy Meyers, the director's proud mother.

Emotional syrup evidently runs in the family because Meyers-Shyer drizzles goopy sentiment over every frame of her contrived wish-fulfilment fantasy about a recently separated wife, who stirs the loins of three potential suitors.

"I'm the idiot who is dealt a winning hand and still managed to lose," grumbles the heroine's estranged husband when he acknowledges everything he let slip through his fingers.

He's not joking - his queen of hearts is a superwoman, who harks from Hollywood royalty, cheerfully chauffeurs the kids to school, cooks nutritious meals, runs a fledgling interior design business, cleans her sprawling Los Angeles residence without breaking a sweat, and still finds time to look expertly coiffed and styled from the moment she wakes.

It must be miserable to totter in her designer heels without a care in the world, savouring the endless good fortune that falls in her lap.

This perky homemaker is Alice Kinney (Reese Witherspoon), whose marriage to music executive Austen (Michael Sheen) has recently broken down.

She relocates to Los Angeles, to the home of her Oscar-winning director father, where she nurtures their daughters Isabel (Lola Flanery) and Rosie (Eden Grace Redfield) with help from her screen siren mother, Lillian (Candice Bergen).

Coincidence flings a trio of aspiring twentysomething filmmakers - director Harry (Pico Alexander), screenwriter George (Jon Rudnitsky) and actor Teddy (Nat Wolff) - into Alice's rarefied world and they take up temporary residence in her guesthouse.

While the three beaux pursue their dreams under the mentorship of a famed director (Reid Scott), Alice prepares a colour chart for a demanding client (Lake Bell).

Sexual tension percolates between Alice and dreamboat Harry until a jealous Austen arrives unannounced, intent on patching up the marriage.

Home Again unfolds in a picture perfect alternate reality, in which lonely singletons cry perfect tears to a soundtrack of Aretha Franklin, Carole King and Johnny Mathis.

Oscar winner Witherspoon fights whitened tooth and painted nail to make us care about her glamorous single mother but it's impossible to muster sympathy for a character, who has everything.

Domhnall Gleeson as Alan Milne and Margot Robbie as Daphne Milne in Goodbye Christopher Robin

The dark age of celebrity parents monetising their cherubic children dawned many years before the scourge of selfies, social media and smart phones.

In the handsomely crafted drama Goodbye Christopher Robin, battle-scarred author A A Milne and his wife Daphne treat their young son as a sales tool in the mid-1920s to promote the literary adventures of a hunny-loving bear called Winnie-The-Pooh.

A tender exchange by telephone between father and son is broadcast live on the radio without the boy's consent or prior knowledge, a trip to the zoo turns into a calculated photo opportunity with the resident brown bear, and playtime is curtailed to make way for a busy schedule of interviews.

The sacrifice of one little boy's childhood innocence for the happiness and healing of a shell-shocked Britain, which has been devastated by the Great War, is at the wounded heart of Simon Curtis' picture.

The script, co-written by Frank Cottrell-Boyce and Simon Vaughan, gradually exposes the anguish and resentment that festered beneath the Hundred Acre Wood.

Milne (Domhnall Gleeson) returns to London from the trenches, where he witnessed hundreds of countrymen cut down in their prime.

"Find something to be happy about and stick to that," suggests his wife Daphne (Margot Robbie), who cannot understand her husband's inner turmoil.

Angered by the senseless loss of life, Milne abandons the capital for a quaint house in Ashdown Forest, transplanting Daphne, their young son Christopher Robin (Will Tilston) and the boy's nanny Olive (Kelly Macdonald) to the verdant idyll. Milne hopes to pen a fierce rebuke against war, but is repeatedly distracted by his son.

"I'd really like if you wrote a book for me," says Christopher Robin sweetly. "I'd definitely read it."

A walk with the boy through the sun-dappled landscape fertilises Milne's imagination and he contemplates a book that magically brings to life his son's menagerie of stuffed toys including a morose donkey named Eeyore and a porcine runt called Piglet.

Good friend Ernest Shepard (Stephen Campbell Moore) illustrates these enchanting escapades, which take the Milne clan around the world including glamorous New York.

"It's just like London, but with more money!" chirrups wide-eyed Daphne.

Goodbye Christopher Robin is a classy evocation of an era that tore countless families apart.

It's an emotionally chilly picture, reflected in Gleeson's restrained performance, which internalises Milne's post-traumatic stress and shuts out his family as well as us.

That facade fractures in a couple of scenes, including one mournful heart-to-heart with his teenage son (now played by Alex Lawther) overlooking the East Sussex countryside.

Robbie relishes her flashier if underwritten character, while Macdonald provides warmth as the nanny, who recognises the damage being wrought on her dimple-cheeked young charge.

Sadly, Milne and his wife don't heed her sage counsel until it is too late.

LIVE MUSIC

THREE OF A KIND

There's more to West Country trio Wille and the Bandits than just blues rock as Martin Neal finds out ahead of their Chelmsford gig next month

When a musician tells you he's heading for the bright lights of the city, it's fair to say that Chelmsford City Football club is rarely what they had in mind.

But critically acclaimed Wille and the Bandits start their UK tour there next month and they couldn't be happier.

Renowned for an electrifying set and a range of influences that take audiences on a rock and roll rollercoaster, the West Country trio are slowly but surely spreading their tentacles to reach bigger audiences.

Often pigeonholed as blues rockers – more about the pigeonhole thing later – they're what you might call slow burners in terms of lighting the flame to commercial success, but that's exactly how they want to play it.

"It's not a commercial sound," admits singer/guitarist/lap steel player Wille Edwards. "We had the option of going down the commercial route some years ago but we decided we didn't want to do that, we wanted to go for the long haul."

"We decided we wanted to take things naturally and that way people get into the music rather than the hype."

"At our shows we get a loyal audience who love the music and have been with us throughout our journey."

"We like the way we are going. We're still very much self-managed and we keep control of our music. It's maybe taking a bit longer this way but our audiences are getting bigger."

If you like proper, well-crafted rock played by accomplished musicians who like to mix things up a bit, Wille and the Bandits are definitely the band for you.

You can see why the blues rock tag has stuck but there's folk, hard rock, prog and even reggae peeping through.

"The national music press love to put us in a box," says Wille, "but we don't fit in a box, and people seem to love that."

"It comes naturally. We never say 'we're going to write a song that sounds like this or that but we like to bring new textures to what we do.'"

After three self-released albums, the band signed to Jigsaw and released Steal earlier this year. It was tracked to analogue tape with the band live on the floor without using any digital tools at all – and it's a very rewarding listen.

"It's the closest you'll get to our live sound on record," adds Wille. "It's more of a rock album than our previous records. In the past we've gone from folk to reggae to heavy rock – we like to keep the audience guessing! And I think they like that."

"We're very proud of the album but whenever we've got an album out, I'm already thinking about where we can go next."

"As Bob Dylan once said when he was asked what his favourite album was 'my favourite album is the one I'm writing at the moment'."

You can expect to hear tracks from Steal as well as the pick of their back catalogue when they play The Clarets Bar at Chelmsford City FC on Tuesday, October 3 (with support from Claude Hay).

You can also expect drummer Andrew Naumann to get a particularly warm reception – he's originally from Southend so he'll have plenty of friends and family in the audience for his Essex homecoming.

BEST GIGS

Hemmingway, Bassment, Chelmsford, Thursday, September 28

Chelmsford band Hemmingway launch their self-titled debut EP with a special night at the Bassment. As well as playing a set themselves, Hemmingway have invited some guests to play as well including The Lemoncurd Kids, Paul Dale & Friends, Matt Calderbank and Jordan Gray. Doors open at 8pm.

F.O.X., Three Wise Monkeys, Colchester, Friday, September 29

Fresh from supporting Depeche Mode on the European leg of their tour, Essex electro-pop outfit F.O.X. are back on home turf for an Essex Rocks gig this Friday. Support comes from Dublin multi-instrumentalist Fjokra and garage rock trio Denial Twist. Doors at 8pm.

Justin Currie, Colchester Arts Centre, Tuesday, October 31

Del Amitri frontman Justin Currie is touring the UK with his band The Pallbearers and calls into Colchester on Hallowe'en. He'll be playing tracks from his latest album, This Is My Kingdom Now, his fourth solo release, a follow-up to 2013's acclaimed Lower Reaches. When he's not touring, writing or recording, Glaswegian Currie collects beer mats and makes his own cushions. So now you know.

HOTRODS FANS SHOULD HOT-FOOT IT TO SOUTHEND THIS FRIDAY

EDDIE and the Hot Rods fans are heading to Southend this Friday to see singer Barrie Masters' side project, Class of 76, which sees him team up with original drummer Steve Nicol.

The band was formed as the ultimate covers band, playing songs that its members were involved in back in the 1970s and 80s.

After the Hot Rods first disbanded in 1981, Masters went on to join R&B outfit The Inmates, while Nicol worked with New York punk legend Johnny Thunders. Bassist Russ Strutter, also a Hot Rod in the 1980s, was originally in Southend band Tonight – who had a hit in 1978 with Drummer Man – and was later recruited by Wilko Johnson. So expect a selection of tracks from all the aforementioned.

Original guitarist Nigel Bennett – of Members and Vibrators fame – left this year and was replaced by Statins guitarist Steve Crancher, who has played with them in festivals in Morecambe and in Spain.

This Friday's gig is at the Cricketers pub, London Road, Westcliff, at 9.30pm and entry is free.

STYLE GUIDE

Rundown from the runway

KATIE WRIGHT looks back at the big hitters of fashion week and what these collections tell us about next spring

LONDON Fashion Week seems to get bigger every year, with more names to know on the schedule and models to keep track of on the catwalks.

But the same stalwart designers have remained the most influential for the last decade, so it's to them we look to find out what's in store for next spring.

If September's shows are anything to go by, the 90s will remain very much in vogue, stripes will get a squiggly makeover, and the Queen is going to be your number one style icon.

1 BURBERRY

The front row: Notably, grime artists Stormzy and Skepta were invited, which hinted at Christopher Bailey's direction this season.

The models: Kaia Gerber, daughter of Cindy Crawford, made her London catwalk debut.

The look: Drawing heavily on the house's archive, the sheepskin jackets, tartan coats and oversized knits were this time imbued with a new streetwear feel. Bailey even went as far as resurrecting the beige Nova Check print that the brand was forced to virtually abandon 10 years ago after it became the calling card of D-list celebrities and football fans. Risky move, but one we can see the fash pack lapping up.

2 TOPSHOP

The front row: New British Vogue editor Edward Enninful cosied up to Kate Moss and her daughter Lila Grace.

The models: A diverse line-up including Adwoa Aboah, Jourdan Dunn and Joan Smalls.

The look: Creative director Kate Phelan's last collection was a jubilant send-off, a riot of party girls in 90s Soho-inspired bodycon frocks, strappy dresses, metallic skirts and big fluffy coats. There was some gorgeous daywear too – particularly the cable knit jumpers and extra-long, straight-leg suit trousers.

3 CHRISTOPHER KANE

The front row: Alexa Chung and Selma Hayek, whose husband is CEO of Kane's parent company Kering.

The models: In-demand newcomers Cara Taylor and Kiki Willems walked.

The look: As usual, a seemingly disparate bunch of references – ruffles, handkerchief hems, chintzy prints and sugary pastels – all came from a single source, which this season Kane said was the idea of the domestic goddess. But this homemaker is hiding something, which is why her cocktail dress is worn with black latex gloves and her shoes come with kitchen mop fringing.

4 ERDEM

The front row: Erdem superfan Alexa Chung, actress Jenna Coleman and Brit model Erin O'Connor.

The models: Another designer who favours interesting new-comers, Erdem Moralioglu chose Cara Taylor to close the show.

The look:

Imagining a 30-something Queen transported to a New York jazz club, Moralioglu sent out a slew of stunningly opulent satin gowns and frock coats. A 50s silhouette ruled throughout and there was lots of sequin and crystal embellishment alongside the designer's trademark florals.

5 HOUSE OF HOLLAND

The front row: Singer Ella Eyre, Little Mix's Leigh-Anne Pinnock and designer Henry Holland's BFF Nicola Roberts of Girls Aloud fame were in attendance.

The models: A refreshingly diverse roster included Sudanese-born Duckie Thot and American Adesuwa Aighewi.

The look: In a word, stripes. Well, waves. These psychedelic squiggles, Holland's ode to surf culture, emblazoned everything from slip dresses to midi skirts to sweat-shirts. The tinsel pool slides and pirate hats that accompanied almost every look may not be to everyone's taste, but the undulating stripes were a real winner.

SOUND OUT

THE new album by The Horrors could well have ended up being their last if recording had not gone well.

Singer Faris Badwan ended up heading off to an isolated cabin in Iceland with fellow band member Rhys Webb to get away from it all and work on the new tracks.

"We were going a bit mad," says Faris, "so we went to Iceland and ended up staying in this place in the middle of nowhere. We were very lucky and saw the Northern Lights when we were there as well."

He adds with a chuckle: "I forced Rhys to cook for me every night – he's a lot better than me. We ate a lot of stir fries. I'm experimental in my cooking. It's edible, but you wouldn't want to revisit them."

The Horrors first swaggered into the public consciousness in early 2006 sporting the stage names Faris Rotter, Joshua Von Grimm, Tomethy Furse, Spider Webb and Coffin Joe.

They cut striking figures with messy, raven hairstyles, heavy eyeliner, pointy boots and Dickensian dandy threads and their music, under the banner Psychotic Sounds For Freaks And Weirdos, was a chaotic fusion of 1980s gothabilly and 1960s garage rock.

By the time of their debut album Strange House 10 years ago, the band's strikingly cartoonish image was already so iconic that they could appear as a parody of themselves, The Black Tubes, on an episode of The Mighty Boosh.

Faris, who turned 31 this week, has been linked in the past with

MARION McMULLEN talks to The Horrors frontman

Faris Badwan about the birth pangs of their new album, V

Peaches Geldof and model Alexa Chung, but now lets the band's music do the talking.

"We're excited," he says, "it's been quite a while since our last record and we are looking forward to it. It feels in some way like starting a new band. We were so happy with the end result, it felt like we had a bit of a breakthrough, and we found a way of working that suited us."

"It's a new chapter for the band. I'm not sure we would have continued on if we had not felt completely happy with the end result and the individual creativity involved but instead it's given us fresh impetus."

The Horrors have recently been playing to some of the biggest audiences of their lives supporting Depeche Mode on part of their Global Spirit tour.

Faris says: "I've always been into Depeche Mode so it was cool and the reception we had from the audiences was great."

We were warned beforehand that Depeche Mode fans were notorious for not giving other bands a good reception, but they were amazing. I'd never really thought of us as a band who could play in stadiums. We definitely never thought of that when we formed the band, but it worked in that environment, and it's probably the most I've enjoyed a stretch of live dates."

New album V was recorded in London with producer Paul Epworth who has worked with everyone from Adele and Coldplay to U2 and Rihanna.

"We had a lot of ideas, but a lot of songs never made it onto the album," says Faris. Even the album's lead single Something To Remember Me By nearly didn't make the cut.

"That's just 'cos we are idiots," declares Faris with a wry laugh.

"We were stupid collectively."

"We wrote a lot of songs for this record and quite a few that were forgotten were really good. This one had just sort of slipped my mind, but I was playing through some demos with Paul in the studio and thought I'd play him Something To Remember Me By."

"When it finished, he said not only did it have to be on the album, but it had to be the single as well and why hadn't we played it to him before. Well, we had but we had just forgotten it."

"We tried a different way of working this time by writing with acoustic guitars and a producer. In the past we've almost tried to second guess where we were going when writing before a song was really formed. Our songs have always been personal, but I think the lyrics are better now and it sounds fresh. It's a risk, but life isn't much fun without risk."

FERGIE - DOUBLE DUTCHESS

FERGIE'S second solo album – released 11 years after her debut The Dutchess – is a flawless fusion of old-school hip hop and pop. If there was a Venn diagram of the two genres, Fergie would be slap bang in that middle section.

This is what fans have been waiting over a decade for: Fergie's powerhouse vocals – bursting with raw honesty, clever production, sharp lyrics and collaborations with the likes of Nicki Minaj and Rick Ross. She's also releasing Double Dutchess as a visual album, just to make the wait worth it.

Opening with Hungry, you're immediately transported to the mid-Nineties thanks to its epic choral background, an ode to Gangsta's Paradise, but it's the final song, an epic power ballad called Love Is Pain, that is the absolute clincher.

ENTER SHIKARI - THE SPARK

THE Spark is a genre-bending soundtrack to the end of the world, and the fifth studio album from the St Albans four-piece.

The album effortlessly leaps from dance floor to circle pit, with themes of society, communication and anxiety cranking the hysteria up to 11.

Take My Country Back delivers a rallying cry over the album's most stratospheric chorus, and in a surprising move, An Ode To Lost Jigsaw Pieces sees synthesizers set to serenade rather than stun.

Those hoping for a return to the earlier sound may be disappointed, but Enter Shikari's unflinching desire to evolve with every release is something very exciting indeed.

MARC ALMOND - SHADOWS AND REFLECTIONS

MARC ALMOND'S recording career spans an incredible 36 years and a diverse back catalogue. He has always been an interpreter of song, from Tainted Love to Something's Gotten Hold Of My Heart with Gene Pitney. This new album features 12 covers as well as a new composition, the Scott Walker-esque No One to Say Good Night To.

How Can I Be Sure?, Blue On Blue and The Shadow Of Your Smile will be familiar to many, but songs such as I'm Lost Without You and I Know You Love Me Not are more obscure. Regardless of that, he faithfully covers these songs for a new audience rather than completely reinventing them. The result is a lush collection created with affection.

Place the pecans in a bowl and drop the balls into the nuts, rolling them around so that they're completely coated and pressing the nuts in so they stick.

4. Line a baking tray with baking parchment, place the cookies on the tray and transfer to the fridge for at least an hour.

5. When ready to bake, preheat the oven to 190°C/Gas Mark 5. Line two baking trays with baking parchment.

6. Place the icing sugar in a bowl and roll the cookies in it, pressing it in as you go so it sticks. Place on the trays, spaced 2-3cm apart, and flatten the cookies to 1cm thick.

7. Bake for 10 minutes then allow them to cool on the tray for 10 minutes before gently transferring to a wire rack. Serve warm, or set them aside until completely cool.

METHOD

1. Place the butter and sugar in the bowl of an electric mixer with the paddle attachment in place. Beat on a medium-high speed until light and fluffy. Gradually add the egg and beat until incorporated.

2. Sift the flour, baking powder, cocoa powder, cinnamon and salt into a bowl, then add to the butter and sugar. Mix on a low speed for 15 seconds, then add the chocolate and banana. Beat until combined, then transfer to the fridge for two hours.

3. When firm, use your hands to form the dough into 3cm round balls, about 20g each.

It's OK to be sweet on these sugary treats...

Yotam Ottolenghi and Helen Goh want us to savour our sweet treats - as ELLA WALKER discovers

A DEBATE with Yotam Ottolenghi and Helen Goh on the merits of any particular cake, biscuit or pudding, spirals into serious, labyrinthine assessments of silkiness and nuttiness, crumb size and snap. There is, they will tell you, an art to ensuring a biscuit has as much crunch when it's liberated from the oven as it does after three days in a tin.

You quickly realise they'd be utterly formidable on Bake Off.

Israeli-British chef Yotam, 48, co-owner - with Sami Tamimi - of the Ottolenghi delis and restaurants, and pastry chef and psychologist Helen, 51, have spent three years concocting and wrangling over sugary treats like this to include in their new book of desserts, Sweet. It's his sixth book and her first.

In it there are mini berry frangipanes, decadent cream-frosted puds and cookies galore - all of which have been put through the pair's ruthless, multi-stage recipe-testing regime.

"Each recipe has to have something indefinably 'Ottolenghi' about it," says Yotam.

Yotam Ottolenghi and Helen Goh, below, and their recipe book, Sweet, right

One thing they were highly aware of throughout making Sweet, was the negative conversations being had around sugar - the mainstream demonisation of the white stuff.

"The difficulty at the moment is creating a clear understanding of what you expect of sugar," says Yotam. "Whenever you demonise something, you want it even more; it creates an unhealthy relationship."

"We've always been raised eating a little bit of sugar, but somewhere along the way, that relationship has become a little bit broken," he says, explaining how a bewildering distance has opened up between us and sugar.

"It's mainly to be blamed on mass-produced food, and sugar added where it doesn't need to be, so how are you meant to trust your instincts on it now?"

"There is room for a piece of cake, room for a bar of chocolate - there is room for all of these things in our lives - but we need to do it consciously."

"And if you make it (yourself), you know exactly what goes in - you are much more aware of what you're eating. I think generally we should be a little bit more relaxed about everything, and the rest will follow."

■ Sweet by Yotam Ottolenghi and Helen Goh (photography by Peden + Munk) is published by Ebury Press, priced £27, and is available now.

"There was always going to be an Ottolenghi pastry book, the question was when," he adds, explaining how the Ottolenghi deli windows have become synonymous with sweet things, particularly the brand's huge and billowy meringues.

"Before you, no one had taken meringues seriously," Helen tells Yotam proudly.

The pair met in 2006, when Helen, who hails from Melbourne, Australia via Malaysia, moved to the UK. She began by encouraging Yotam to up the patisserie and sugar-work in the deli windows, and won him over with her remarkable attention to detail and oaty Australian Anzac cookies.

They've been friends and partners in pastry ever since.

With baking, it's the precision and escape that appeals to Helen: "There's a satisfaction of following the steps and then getting something at the end - just that sense of achievement, and that sense of flow. You have to be accurate and very focused, which means you forget about everything else."

For Yotam, it's the way baking intersects with memory: "We're all yearning for things that feel comforting and reminiscent of home - and I think baking really brings that across, even more than other forms of cooking."

THOSE of you with long memories might recall that months ago my clumsiness got the better of me at a Wines of Australia tasting. Within minutes of arriving I broke my phone and I later left my tasting notes on the train. I promised to bring you some Australian wines another time; this is that time.

You might be familiar with the most widely planted varieties in Australia - shiraz, chardonnay, cabernet sauvignon and merlot - which account for almost 70% of the vines. There has been a steady increase in the planting of alternative grape varieties and here are five you can seek out.

It would be a perfect outdoor wine if we get an Indian summer, to enjoy with a bowl of sorbet or a fruit flan, or on its own. It has aromas of lychee, orange blossom and a hint of ginger, and a mystery of musky perfume.

■ Chalmers Vermentino 2014 (RRP £17.50, greatwesternwine.co.uk, qwinest.co.uk, thefinewinecompany.co.uk, 12% abv): The Chalmers family was one of the first to plant alternative varieties and is at the forefront of developing them even further. Chalmers produced the first Australian vermentino in 2004 and I'm glad they did. This white has a clean, fresh, floral nose with hints of lemon. To taste it has stone fruits, citrus, apple, and a delicate creaminess.

■ De Bortoli Deen Vat Riverina Durif 2014 (£7.99, brayvalleywines.co.uk, 14.5% abv): The durif grape is also known as petite syrah and this red wine is deep and intense, not quite brooding, but getting there. The wine has aromas of plums, bramble fruits and liquorice with chocolate teasing in the background. Those same notes can be found when you taste it.

■ Australia Felix Swan Hill Victoria Shiraz-Sagrantino 2016 (£8.95, thewinesociety.com, 14% abv): An easy-drinking red, but complex too. Picture the scene. My nephew-in-law outside in the rain tending his day-long slow-barbecued ribs and a wonderful beef brisket; my niece and I watching him from the warm, sipping this wine. When the meat was served, this wine was a perfect match. It has blackberry and plum notes, a flash of spice, a chirrup of cherry, and an edge of savoury.

■ First Drop The Big Blind Nebbiolo Barbera 2012 (RRP £20.99, oldbutcherswinecellar.co.uk, shop.vinoteca.co.uk, thesecretcellar.co.uk and others, 14% abv): We also had a glass of this with the brisket. The nebbiolo (65%) and barbera wines were aged in oak, some French new oak too, and mature on the lees for 15 months before blended. The wine has a sweet spice on the nose, which mingled with the barbecue spices; there's vanilla, with a playfulness of mocha; it is a wow of red fruit and cherry.

THESE pretty little friands would be the icing on a very fancy afternoon tea.

Yotam and Helen say: "These look splendid when iced - destined for top ranking on any tiered cake stand - but also work un-iced, in the cookie tin, for grabbing on a whim."

"They'll lose their slightly chewy edge after the first day or so, but still taste great. Blueberries or raspberries can be used instead of the blackberries. "Don't use strawberries, though - they are too watery."

INGREDIENTS (Makes 12)

180g unsalted butter, plus an extra 10g, melted, for brushing
60g plain flour, plus extra for dusting
200g icing sugar
120g ground almonds
1½tsp ground star anise (or three whole star anise, blitzed in a spice grinder and passed through a fine-mesh sieve)
A small pinch salt
150g egg whites (from 4 large eggs)
Finely grated zest of 1 small orange (1tsp)

18 whole blackberries (about 120g), cut in half lengthways
For the icing (optional):
60g blackberries (about 8), plus an extra 24 small blackberries, to garnish

¾tbsp water
1tsp lemon juice
165g icing sugar

METHOD:

1. Preheat the oven to 220°C/Gas Mark 7. Brush the 12 holes of a regular muffin tin with the melted butter and sprinkle all over with flour. Tap the tray gently to ensure an even coating of the flour, then turn upside down to remove the excess. Place in the fridge to chill while you make the batter.

2. To brown the butter, place in a small saucepan and cook over a medium heat until melted. Continue to cook until the butter is foaming, gently swirling the pan from time to time, to allow the solids to brown more evenly. You will see dark brown sediments begin to form on the sides and bottom of the pan. Continue to allow the butter to bubble away until it turns a rich golden brown and smells of toasted nuts and caramel. Remove the pan from the heat and let it stand for five minutes, to allow the burnt solids to collect at the bottom of the pan. Strain through a fine-mesh (or muslin-lined) sieve, discarding the solids. Allow the browned butter to cool slightly before using.

3. While the butter is cooling, sift the flour, icing sugar, ground almonds, star anise and salt into a bowl. Place the egg whites in a small bowl and use a whisk or fork to froth them up for a few seconds. Pour the egg whites into the sifted dry ingredients and stir until incorporated. Add the orange zest and browned butter and mix until smooth.

4. Remove the muffin tin from the fridge and fill the moulds just over two-thirds of the way up the sides. Place three halved blackberries on top, cut side down, and bake for 10 minutes. Reduce the temperature to 210°C/Gas Mark 6, turn the tray around in the oven for even cooking, and continue to cook for another eight minutes, until the edges of the friands are golden brown and the centres have a slight peak and spring back when gently prodded. Set aside to cool before removing from their moulds.

5. If you are icing the cakes, place 60g of blackberries in a small bowl with the water and lemon juice. Use a fork to mash them together, then pass the mixture through a fine-mesh sieve to extract as much fruit juice as possible - you should get about 60ml.
6. Sift the icing sugar into a medium bowl, pour in the blackberry juice and combine to make a light purple runny icing. It should just be thick enough to form a thin glaze on the tops of the cakes.
7. Spoon the icing over the cakes, spreading it to the edges so it runs down the sides. Place two small blackberries on each friand, set aside for 20 or 30 minutes to set, then serve.

BOOKSHELF

I went straight from a kids' book to writing an adult stand-up show... that's a gear change

DARA O'BRIAIN loves the unusual, the quirky, the absurd – and this is clearly demonstrated in his first children's book, Beyond The Sky, about the weird and wonderful world of space.

Unlike other comedians who have written books for children – David Walliams, Russell Brand, Julian Clary and Adrian Edmondson spring to mind – Dara has followed a different course, amusing nine- to 12-year-olds and curious adults with this dip-in treat of fabulous facts which should have the kids – and adults – laughing out loud.

Did you know, for instance, that the European country astronauts always recognised at night was Belgium because it had a law that every road must be lit at night?

Or that Russian astronauts used to urinate on their transfer bus tyres before boarding their rockets?

These, and a host of other interesting facts about space, planets, astronauts and the stars, are featured in the book.

Dara, 45, who is currently writing material for a forthcoming mammoth stand-up tour, says he didn't try the space material out on his own kids.

"I never even thought of doing it for the same reason I don't try out new material on my wife," he says.

"As a comedy performer you don't try out your jokes on the person nearest to you, because it wears them down and puts tension in the house."

The book may at first sight seem a lighthearted look at space, but the fast-talking Irishman is a heavyweight when it comes to science. He studied mathematical physics at University College Dublin and yet gave up the chance of an academic career for stand-up comedy, which then expanded into TV presenting, hosting topical panel shows like Mock The Week as well as The Apprentice spin-off show, You're Fired.

So, why didn't he choose a

As TV presenter and comedian Dara O'Briain launches his first book for children, he talks to HANNAH STEPHENSON about his fascination with space, and reveals why he chose comedy as a career scientific career?

"It was the sheer thrill of performance. It turned out, to my surprise, that I was a trouper, I wanted to be in front of an audience, which was a major surprise to me, because I wasn't a class clown or anything."

"I stood in front of an audience at university doing debating and the laughs just created a surge inside."

"Suddenly the dialogue felt good and created a rush. I still feel that now, but it takes more effort – three to six months of writing a two-hour show, but it's a more substantial kind of a feeling now."

"I still get fidgety sitting in a theatre, and think I'd rather be in front of this crowd than in this crowd. That's a performer's thing."

In the six-month gap between tours, he admits he becomes restless.

"I'm happy to portray this as an appalling need for validation. I haven't been told 'I love you' by strangers in a while, so I have to get out in front of a crowd."

Yet he still gets nervous

"You write the stuff when you are nervous and your brain goes into a different mode of flinging ideas out, so a lot of the show is predominantly written in previews, where you are standing in front of an audience with a half-formed idea."

"There's no risk when you're sitting in a room with a piece of paper. But you have to stand in front of an audience at a gig with that piece of paper and an audience will quickly tell you if it's funny or not."

"It's a strange process driven by failure and fear, and your brain panicking and delivering something funnier in the moment."

"But you do get better at writing it, and develop a skill for it, like any writer."

He may be reaching out to youngsters with this book, but he's given talks on stargazing at schools, including his own children's school, so he's fairly familiar with his audience.

Switching from writing for children to writing for adults wasn't too arduous, he reflects.

"I went straight from the book to writing a grown-up stand-up show. 'That's a gear change. But when you start giggling, you have time to do other things – and I was a kids' TV presenter for a couple of years."

"I used to do the live kids' programme at 5pm on RTE and then hopped on a train to Cork to host a comedy club. Your brain switches from one to the other."

The stand-up tour material is getting there, slowly, he says, and will feature Brexit – although he's steering clear of US President Donald Trump and North Korea.

"When you're writing a stand-up show, you're writing it for a two-year tour. The same show will finish in Oslo in 2019 or in Melbourne in 2020. You can't do this week's Trump story. The subjects have to be strong enough to withstand being told 150 times."

"Jokes which are funny the first 60 times may become boring by the 61st time. It's amazing how much stuff you shed over the course of a tour. You expand on material and find things within it which are different."

"What might have once been a one-line observation becomes a longer piece with a jumping-off point in it."

He's hoping to do another series of BBC2's Stargazing next year and is hosting another Robot Wars, but his The Apprentice: You're Fired! days – he left the show in 2014 – are definitely behind him.

"I did five years and I'm very happy to hand it over to someone else. It was a fun show to do, but you can interview enough people in shiny suits who want to be on The Apprentice, and I think I had my fill with 84 of them."

THE GOLDEN HOUSE by Salman Rushdie, Jonathan Cape, £18.99 (ebook £9.99)

THE high life of Manhattan, art and fashion, sibling quarrels, an unexpected metamorphosis, the arrival of a beautiful woman, betrayal and murder are all promised in Salman Rushdie's latest work – a searing examination of modern America and the world around it since 2008.

But as fans know, the path to discovering these episodes is entwined with mystery, deception, and magic realism.

Beginning with the arrival in New York of the mysterious Nero Golden, a fiendishly rich real estate mogul, the story follows the family's Manhattan life, told through the eyes of Rene, an aspiring film-maker living on the same block. Rushdie captures the devilish mood of post-crash greed, political upheaval, and the rejection of the cosmopolitan, liberal west.

KEEN second-hand bookshop browsers may already be aware of The Book Shop in Wigtown, Scotland, as it has a thriving social media presence.

But readers who have never heard of its owner Shaun Bythell, should get just as much enjoyment from this Diary, which runs for a full year from February 5, 2014.

Prefacing each chapter with an extract from George Orwell's Bookshop Memories from 1936, helps Bythell draw amusing similarities between the profession then and now.

The book is peopled with fascinating characters: from Nicky, his unruly, Morrisons-skip-raiding, sort-of-deputy; to Mr Deacon, still ordering books from a shop rather than Amazon; to festival-organising friend Eliot.

It's a sarcastic reminder of small business struggles, the importance of community and the frustration of dealing with customers.

STANSTED VICTORIAN COTTAGE IS FULL OF RUSTIC CHARM

This three-bedroom semi-detached is ideally located in the heart of the village

This period Stansted home is full of rustic charm with a garden to match. The three-bedroom Victorian semi-detached cottage is on the market for £425,000.

Located in Millfields, it is within walking distance of schools, shops, pubs, restaurants and the mainline train station to London Liverpool Street and Cambridge.

It has been extended and improved by the current owner, but retains all of its period character.

The front door opens into the lounge, with its tiled fireplace and wooden floor and the adjacent dining room, featuring an ornate cast iron fireplace surround, built in cupboards and shelving, and an original wooden door.

Also on the ground level is the kitchen/breakfast room on a split level.

It is replete with black granite worktops, a butler sink on brick plinths and stainless steel oven and gas hob, with space and plumbing for appliances.

A part-vaulted ceiling, exposed brick and pine panelled walls and tiled floor complete the kitchen.

There are also French double doors leading to the rear garden and conservatory.

On the first floor are two bedrooms, plus a bathroom with ornate cast iron fire place, tiled walls, a feature freestanding bath, pedestal wash hand basin and low-level WC.

The second floor hosts a bedroom with exposed brick chimney breast and timbers.

To the front of the house is driveway parking and a gated side access to the rear garden, which measures about 50ft with paved terrace, lawn, large timber garden shed with power connection and mature planting with a selection of trees and shrubs.

NEWLY-BUILT HOME IN VILLAGE LOCATION

This stunning four-bedroom detached family home in Burnthouse Lane, Ingatestone, is one of two newly-built properties in a fantastic rural part of the historic village that simply needs to be seen to be believed.

Kemsley Residential are currently offering this fantastic property with a guide price of £775,000, with easy access to the all-important shops, amenities and a short half an hour train journey from the centre of London.

Looking inside the property, the sleek and stylish kitchen, which has been fitted with SMEG appliances, leads into a family-sized dining area with attractive bi-folding doors that open out into inviting and spacious garden that is perfect for families and socialising with friends.

Next to that is a large and welcoming living room, along with a downstairs cloakroom, storage cupboard and a separate utility room, which has a convenient interior door that leads to the garage.

Upstairs, you will find four generously-sized bedrooms, with the master bedroom boasting both a dressing room and en-suite shower room.

From top to bottom, the house has been stylishly finished, offering everything you need for a modern lifestyle – including remote heating technology that can be controlled from your mobile phone.

One of Ingatestone's most desirable features is its railway station, as not many villages this size are able to offer direct and regular train services into the heart of London.

You can commute to the City in around 30 minutes, or head the opposite direction to arrive at Chelmsford Station in less than 10 minutes. Stratford, with its incredible shopping and sport facilities, is only 21 minutes away while Clacton-on-Sea, for a day by the coast, also has regular services from Ingatestone.

As for the road links, the A12 by-passes Ingatestone village, providing access to the M25 and the wider national road network to the South or head North on the A12 to Colchester.

If you desire to travel further afield, Stansted and London City airports are both within easy reach of Ingatestone, as well as the Eurostar service at St Pancras, which is just four stops on the Circle Line from London Liverpool Street.

For the quiet of the country and the buzz of the town, Ingatestone offers a location that you, and your family, will love.

Price £775,000.

YOUR HOME

BEDROOM BLISS

It's time to 'nest' as the temperature drops, and transform your bedroom – the room in the house where you can truly retreat and relax – into a cosy but stylish sanctuary.

After all, this is the place where we start and finish our day. We spend a third of our lives in bed – so it deserves special attention.

Whether you dream of a glamorous setting, a luxurious hotel-style bedroom, or would simply like a quick update, here's everything you need to know...

GLAMOROUS SANCTUARY

"Creating a glamorous look is all about using rich, decadent colours and textured fabrics," says Samantha Parish, interior design manager for bespoke beds and mattress specialists, Hypnos. "Conjure a warm and inviting colour palette with champagne hues, subtle pinks, purples and plums. Combine textures such as satin, velvet and faux fur, key to creating a luxurious, romantic feel."

"For a contemporary vibe, dress a bed with white bed linen and a velvet throw, and add an eclectic mix of cushions. In any style of bedroom, the bed should always take centre stage."

"For a more feminine interpretation, add art deco-style mirrored furniture and on-trend metallic accents, lamps and accessories."

■ Tip: For smaller rooms, avoid heavy patterns and dark colours, as they'll look too busy. At the other end of the scale, larger rooms shouldn't be too minimalist, as they can look cold.

HOTEL STYLE

"A boutique hotel-style bedroom is a

Snuggle up in new surroundings with these dreamy settings hugely popular choice and this crisp, smart look appeals particularly to couples who want a style that suits both their tastes, and is neither overtly feminine nor macho," says Samantha.

"Colour is key in creating a haven of rest, so look at palettes you're both drawn to. If you can't agree on which shade, opt for something pale – like a soft grey or off-white hue – that provides a neutral backdrop.

"Enhance the mood and ambience with carefully considered lighting, such as task lighting for bedtime reading on either side of the bed. We offer Zip & Link beds, (£1,722 for Zip & Link mattress; £2,289 for Zip & Link mattress and bed set), ideal for couples who have different preferences. "This type of bed is made up of two mattresses with different comfort levels, which can be used together or separated into two singles."

■ Tip: Dare to go for a paler carpet, as this is normally a 'low-traffic' area and hopefully, where people don't wear shoes. Neutrals or greys will work with most schemes, and carpet is warmer underfoot.

BOUDOIR ON A BUDGET

"Autumn's the perfect time to put a stylish twist on your bedroom's design," says Samantha. "For a simple and easy way to rejuvenate the look of your space, consider changing a headboard."

"A tall, winged headboard gives a room

the 'wow' factor and completely transforms its aesthetic into something sophisticated and special. Or opt for a simple metal or wooden one, if you don't want the bed to dominate.

"Dress a bed with throws and cushions in a new colour scheme – deep blues, teal and indigo are in fashion. This colour could be used to paint a feature wall behind the bed, or take the shade over the walls and ceiling for a cosy, cossetting feel."

"Even a basic makeover can make a difference."

"Focus on decluttering and tidying surfaces – too many visual distractions can make it hard to relax and sleep. Change bedside lamps or just replace drawer handles and curtain ties with more decorative items. All these can make a surprising difference to the room's atmosphere and appeal, and all for a minimal cost."

Bag a bargain at Furniture Village, which has an upholstered winged Tempur Holcot Ottoman bed frame (kingsize) for £995.

Accessorise with its velour cushions, £39 each, and a Cera mustard table lamp, £119.

■ Tip: If you're space-starved, consider fitted furniture, which can create up to three times more storage space than freestanding pieces, as it can be tailored to precisely fit the room.

The exterior of the main building at the Kentucky horse farm Johnny Depp bought for his mother

YOU'LL NEED DEPP POCKETS TO BUY JOHNNY'S FARM

It has been a mixed year for Pirates of the Caribbean actor Johnny Depp.

On the one hand Jack Sparrow returned for his latest cutlasses and captains caper, no doubt to the actor's considerable profit. On the other hand, Depp has gone through a messy divorce and is involved in a legal suit with his former business managers.

He's also been busy offloading many of his multi-million-dollar properties around the world including a five-penthouse property in New York, a farm in France, an apartment in Venice and now this horse farm in Kentucky, which he bought for his mother in 1995.

The property was put up for sale late last year for $2.9m but failed to find a buyer.

The kitchen

More recently, it was put up for auction last week, but also failed to attract bids over the minimum asking price.

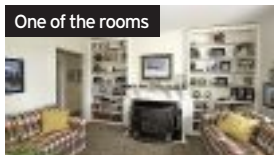

Depp, pictured left, was born in Kentucky and grew up surrounded by horse farms and, early on in his career, bought the 41-acre farm for his mother Betty Sue Palmer.

He then sold the farm in 2001 but bought it back in 2005. It includes a six-bedroom main house, guest house, three barns, a stable for 15 horses, 10 paddocks, swimming pool and a 10-car garage.

It's also in the heart of Kentucky's rural bluegrass heartland and, after failing to sell, Depp's business manager says he's still open to offers on the property.

The best bid during the auction was from a local radio DJ of $1.4m, which was rejected.

THE FAIREST COTTAGE OF THEM ALL?

No childhood is complete without a Christmas viewing of Disney's 1937 classic cartoon Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. It's why we all occasionally sing 'hi ho, hi ho, it's off to work we go' and occasionally ask our mirror who's the 'fairest of them all'?

But one family took their interest in the film – and the Brothers Grimm, who wrote the original 1812 fairy tale – to a new level.

During the 1950s they built an almost exact replica of the enchanted cottage that the film's Snow White lives in with the seven dwarfs, on the outskirts of Olalla in Washington, near Seattle.

No expense was spared to copy the wooden detailing, intricate forged ironwork and stained glass depicted within the cartoon property.

The family lived at the cottage until 2005, but the woman who subsequently bought it then carried on its development, including enhancing the interior. But 12 years later it is now on the market again, for £775,000.

A still from Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs
Credit: Walt Disney

Like its animated counterpart, the cottage is next to a wood, a five-acre one, that comes with the property.

The four-bedroom 'cottage' is actually a large 2,800 sq ft house with an extremely high-pitched roof, oval door lintels, cute wooden doors and a tree trunk running through the centre of it.

Other features include stone almost everywhere, stuccoed walls, hand-carved beams and, as in the film, a wood stove to cook on.

Watch posh reality TV show Made in Chelsea and you'll soon be familiar with the upper-crust charms of McVitie's biscuit heir Jamie Laing.

His great-great-grandfather, Alexander Grant, invented the digestive biscuit during the late 19th century, and transformed the fortunes of the original firm, which was founded by Robert McVitie in 1830 with a single shop in Edinburgh.

By the late 19th century his son, also called Robert, had built the company into a national and then global empire with the help of Alexander Grant.

McVitie junior bought this Georgian mansion with the proceeds of their baking wealth in 1907 for £9,500. Called Woodcock Hill, it's on the outskirts of Berkhamsted in Hertfordshire.

After Robert died his wife sold it and then in 1939 it became a temporary school for girls during the war, and then in 1942, a nunnery. In 1951 it was divided into three apartments and one of these is now for sale.

It includes a large entrance lobby, hall, three reception rooms, four bedrooms plus several outbuildings, a large cellar including a wine store and access to 21 acres of land and three acres of gardens.

The property is for sale with Fine & Country (01442 877627) for £1.75m.

Author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is famous for his detective Sherlock Holmes and the books he features in. His work has found a new audience more recently with the BBC's hit series starring Benedict Cumberbatch, and its big screen revival by Guy Ritchie, the third of which - starring Robert Downey Jr (pictured) and Jude Law - is due out soon.

But what fans might not know is that Conan Doyle was also a keen architect, helping design his own home in Surrey, a huge hotel in Canada and helping create Lyndhurst Park Hotel in the New Forest. Sadly, it is now the only building left standing that he designed, and it now faces demolition.

The Victorian Society, which campaigns to save the best of the architecture from the period, is trying to save the property, which a developer has applied for planning permission to demolish and replace with retirement flats.

It has stood empty since 2014 and is starting to fall apart.

"It is now of paramount importance that the building be reconsidered for listing, as that would offer it valuable protection against demolition and insensitive redevelopment," says Tom Taylor of the Victorian Society.

IT'D BE A CRIME NOT TO BUY IT

This 100-year-old blue clapperboard chalet for sale in the fishing village of West Bay in Dorset will be familiar to fans of the award-winning ITV crime series Broadchurch.

During many episodes of the show the two-bedroom property was home to Detective Inspector Alec Hardy (played by David Tennant) and he endured several dramatic cliff-hangers there. During series two, which aired in 2015, the chalet became more than just a backdrop.

Series' script writer Chris Chibnall, during the run-up to the series, said the chalet was integral to the mystery explored during the plot and that it was where "lots - if not all - of the secrets" were hidden.

Brit Bank in West Bay, Dorset

The property, which in real life is called Brit Bank, has two double bedrooms, the chalet has a lounge, kitchen, bathroom, a utility room, views over the harbour and mooring for a boat.

West Bay is also home to several other key Broadchurch locations including the fictional village's police station, newsagent, café, community hall and, most famously, its beaches - although other filming locations include Portishead, Bristol, Shepton Mallet and Weston-Super-Mare.

Brit Bank, which until recently has been let out as a holiday home, is for sale at £300,000 with local agent Staggs (01308 428000).

David Tennant and co-star Olivia Colman in Broadchurch

YOUR GARDEN

With Diarmuid Gavin

Bulbs to light up a bleak midwinter

Last week I wrote about preparing for spring with a selection of bulbs to whet your appetite. This week I'm going to tell you how you can bring spring to your house in mid-winter with a bit of forward planning.

I'm referring to the practice of "forcing" bulbs to flower ahead of their time. By planting now and into October, you can have wonderful scented and colourful flowering displays indoors by Christmas.

They also make great Christmas gifts and you can save yourself a fair few quid by doing the preparation now, instead of buying them ready-made in December.

First, you need to purchase some hyacinth bulbs – you are looking for "prepared" ones as these have already been subjected to a cold spell to trick them that they are half way through winter.

If you are choosing different varieties, don't mix them up as they can flower at different times.

The packaging will give you approximate times for flowering so keep this info handy.

You'll also need some bulb fibre or multi-purpose compost.

Bulb fibre contains some charcoal which keeps the compost sweet by absorbing gases and this is particularly useful if you are using bowls which have no drainage holes.

Next your container... here's where you can be inventive and creative.

Simple terracotta pots are always lovely and can be jazzed up for Christmas by using gold or silver sprays or red ribbons. A lovely way to personalise a gift is to spray the recipient's initial on the pot using a stencil.

There are plenty of household items that can be upcycled, and for this pro-

Make the effort to prepare hyacinths now and they will make the perfect present to yourself when the cold nights arrive ject you can get away with items which don't have drainage holes. So before you chuck away that old kettle or teapot, could it be a quirky planter?

Ditto, old watering cans, biscuit or tea tins, jars, vases, bowls, tin cans, wire containers (with moss), ovenware, baskets, old tool boxes and any other vessels can all be sized up as possible containers for your bulb display. Car boot sales and charity shops are also great hunting grounds for finding quirky, cheap and unusual vases and pots.

Now to work – wear gloves to protect your hands as hyacinth bulbs can cause skin irritation.

Fill your pot with compost/bulb fibre, leaving a couple of inches for the bulbs. Place these on top, close but not touching, their noses pointing to the sky.

Now fill in gaps with more compost – you want the tips of the bulbs to be visible at the top, not buried.

Water in so it's all moist – if you overdo the watering, just gently tip the pot to one side to drain off the excess. Place the pot in a cool (around 9C), dark place – a shed or garage is ideal – and drape a black polythene sack on top to exclude the light.

Depending on the variety, leave in situ for around six to eight weeks.

Check them periodically and water so they don't dry out.

When about two inches of yellow growth is showing, bring the pots into the light – somewhere not too bright or hot. Be patient – if you whip them out of the garage too early you'll get lots of leaves but not many flowers.

Over the next three weeks they will green up and flower, and be ready as gifts or to be brought into the house.

It can be a good idea to stagger the planting – so do some this weekend and another batch in a fortnight's time so you'll have plenty of fragrance to look forward to over the festive season.

You can also plant them in special hyacinth vases – little glass vases with a neck for the bulb to rest in.

You just keep the water topped up to below – but not touching – the bulb, and keep in a cool, dark place as above.

Here's a selection to look out for when you're shopping: Amethyst and Ostara for beautiful violet flowers, Delft is the classic blue and Kronos a very deep blue, Pink Pearl and White Pearl.

And they all smell fantastic!

Blossoming hyacinths add a welcome splash of colour as the seasons change and make perfect Christmas gifts

With the warm weather it's a good time to divide perennials

■ If you have an area of lawn set aside as a meadow, it's time to give it its autumn chop. Cut as close to the ground as possible and remove cuttings. This allows the light in and helps the germination of new seeds.

■ Remove summer raspberry canes which have finished fruiting. Next year's fruit will be on the fresh green canes and these need tying in to supports.

No raspberries? Think about ordering them and other fruiting canes, such as blackberries, as you can plant them in the dormant season this winter.

■ While this beautiful weather continues and the ground is still warm, it is a good time to lift and divide perennials. They won't all like division – for example, those with a tap root like a carrot, such as cow parsley. When replanting divisions, give them a good soak and keep well watered to help them establish.

■ Dry days make good seed collection days. Armed with a brown paper bag and pen, shake the seed into the bag and label.

Many seeds can be sown fresh now or kept in a dry, cool place for spring sowing.

■ Keep planting bulbs for next spring – try small easy ones like Chionodoxa (Glory of the Soil) and crocus – easy because you don't have to dig down far.

About two inches coverage of soil is fine for them.

Plant hyacinth bulbs now, top, for a beautiful display midwinter, above

ASK DIARMUID

Q Please can you alert your readers about the fuchsia gall mite which is attacking plants. This year, me and my neighbours have had our plants and bushes attacked. I have many varieties of fuchsia plants in pots and window boxes, as well as a couple of bush. I thought the damage looked like galls, so I Googled it and came up with all the information. I cannot start from scratch again, so I'm going to cut branches back and hope. I'm wary of putting the branches in the garden recycling for fear of spreading the mites. Any advice?

Val Clover

A Yes, unfortunately this little creature - Aculops fuchsiae - was first spotted a decade ago in Britain and causes damage to many varieties of fuchsia. These tiny sap-sucking mites are only visible with a microscope but they manage to destroy the appearance of the plant.

You're right to cut out damaged material. Put it in a refuse bin as the mites will only spread if left in the garden. You'll also need to clean your secateurs and gloves after this. Prune back hard, and a cold winter may kill off any remaining bugs on your outdoor plants.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

PERSICARIA AFFINIS 'SUPERBA'

Persicaria has a bit of a reputation - its common name is knotweed, and many regard it as just that - weedy and invasive.

You do need to be careful about which species you select, but 'Superba' lives up to its name. It's a low-growing, mat-forming perennial with pink flowers deepening to crimson.

The flowers last well into autumn and the deep green leaves turn bronze. It's very good as ground cover so long as your soil doesn't dry out - it really prefers moist or poorly drained soil.

It's a good choice for wildlife-friendly gardeners as it provides late pollen for bees and butterflies, and birds eat the flower seeds.

POWER PLAY

By Ian Johnson

AN eminently practical sports car, the Subaru BRZ has an air of the glory days of the classic GTs. For instance, there is a proper handbrake which is situated in just the right position, a superb close ratio manual transmission and that cosseted but safe feel of sports seats about it.

Under the bonnet is the renowned Subaru Boxer petrol engine, which, in technical speak is a horizontally opposed unit of four cylinders, front mounted and driving the rear wheels - just as it should be for enjoyable performance driving.

This 2.0-litre unit has become a true classic of an engine and is now taken to new heights in the BRZ which is happily capable of 140mph and can sprint to 62mph in just over seven seconds.

But the BRZ has a much wider appeal than just a sports car. In my view it is a luxury GT, just like the classics of old with a massive punch, yet wearing silk gloves.

Classed as a two-plus-two the rear seats are not exactly practical but there is enough room in the front for driver and passenger, encompassed in a fighter plane style cockpit with figure hugging sports seats.

When driving cars such as this, one of the most annoying problems is the preponderance of speed humps on our roads. The concern is not that they make you hit the brakes, but the fact that some of them pose a distinct danger to the undersides of low slung sports cars.

No worries with the BRZ though because its 120mm ride height is adequate to clear most humps.

On the road, its inverted MacPherson strut front suspension a double wishbone rear arrangement with anti-roll stabiliser bar made for some fine driving and the electronic power assisted steering was excellently set up with just the right amount of road feel.

On the economy front a combined figure of 36.2mpg is remarkable for a car of this type as is the CO2 emissions figure of 180g/km.

The BRZ has recently been updated and is now slightly lower and wider at the front with full LED headlights. Its new look is also enhanced by redesigned rear lamps, 10-spoke aluminium alloys and an aerodynamic pedestal type spoiler.

Driver aids include a 4.2-inch colour LCD multi-information display which even includes a G-force meter. Nice idea this but not exactly useful on the daily commute or school run.

The practical sports theme extends to the driving seat and steering column which feature generous levels of adjustment.

The thinking behind the BRZ was that it should appeal to those who wanted a sports car which was not too over the top without sacrificing power and driving qualities.

This it achieves admirably and is not too expensive at £26,495.

By Robin Roberts

There is doom, gloom and then there is Dacia. The Renault subsidiary Romanian-made models are the quiet success story in a year that has ruffled feathers of some peacock producers who've made a lot of noise about Brexit and dire warnings of impending disaster.

Meanwhile, Dacia and its delighted 161 UK dealers have ratcheted up sales over five per cent in the first six months when the market share was down closer to 10 per cent.

Ironically, the Dacia increase was matched by a near identical decrease in sales by its Renault parent, so you wonder how many buyers are simply trading across while remaining with their familiar dealer?

The Dacia brand is not big in range or numbers in the UK but two-thirds are met with the Sandero hatch and Stepway SUV and it's the latter which is gaining ground in a market that is slowly moving away from saloons and even some hatchbacks in the family sector.

Despite its looks, the Sandero Stepway compact SUV is front-wheel drive only and comes in three trim levels with 75 and 90bhp petrol and a 90bhp diesel.

Earlier this year they were facelifted and updated inside with a better quality sound system and less austere trim, but I think there is still room for improving the tactile appearance and feel.

The higher power turbo-petrol engine provided respectable performance from rest and through the gears but it let you know how hard it was working.

It was at its best cruising main roads but if you needed to use the gears the clutch action was pleasantly progressive, the gearshift short and it responded quickly through mid-range.

Our overall fuel consumption reflected the fact it had a five-speed gearbox and was not particularly economical, and with a load aboard it was obviously working hard.

I would have liked more feedback through the steering although its turning circle was good and it did not suffer from kick-back vibration while the brakes were well up to their job at any speed and the parking brake securely held on our regular test slope.

The ride is probably the most satisfying side to the Dacia Stepway.

You might expect a car at this price to be hard or bumpy, but it absorbed road shocks and poor surfaces with scarcely a second impression being felt inside and then the big, well padded and supporting seats did a good job.

It is not a sporting SUV so the handling is not dynamic but it does a good job of turning into bends, staying firmly on the road and did not exhibit any real vices, but it could be improved in the steering feel.

The Sandero Stepway is a roomy car with good access and egress, leg and headroom; low waistline, big wipers and adequate lights mean it offers safe visibility.

While oddments room was modest and could be improved, there was no complaint about the bootspace which quadrupled from a little over 300 litres, was easy to use and sensibly shaped.

That engine noise at higher revs in the intermediate gears, the every present road rumbles and suspension noises were intrusive while wind noise was surprisingly low, or seemed to be.

I am sure successive models in the Stepway series will take on the issues I have highlighted because it is a good value car with a reassuring warranty and offers low-running costs and that's a good base upon which to build and stand out amid doom and gloom.

'We can't feel sorry for ourselves'

Hawks boss looking for response in FA Cup

By Andrew Franczak

BACK-to-back defeats have seen Harlow Town plunge to third from bottom of the table Bostik League Premier Division table.

Manager Danny Chapman was hoping for an immediate response from his team against Needham Market on Tuesday night following the 6-0 drubbing at the hands of Kingstonian, but it wasn't to be.

Needham Market hit home three times from a set pieces to put the Hawks on the back foot in the first half, and despite a better showing in the second period that forced an own goal, it was another pointless encounter from the Hawks.

Chapman said: "Saturday was a massive disappointment for me, for the players and everyone involved in the football club.

"It was embarrassing to lose by that score and I was looking for a reaction against Needham.

"Unfortunately we never got that and I said to the players in the changing room it's taken them 45 minutes to look like they even had an intent.

"That can't be right not after the performance they gave on Saturday.

"We have to remind ourselves that before Saturday it was one loss in seven games.

"Performances were there and attitude was there and intent was there, but because but because we've had one freak result on Saturday they felt sorry for themselves.

"For the first 20 minutes of the second half we looked like the side that we know we can be. Overall I'm disappointed.

"We can't feel sorry for ourselves - that's not who the players are and not who I am, and it can't happen again.

"We pride ourselves in set pieces.

"To concede all three from set-pieces, but to concede two from the exact same spot, it's a particular person not doing their job properly and that's something they need to understand.

"If one little chink in the chain is not right it will snap and that is exactly what happened on two occasions."

Harlow travel to East Thurrock United in the third qualifying round of the FA Cup this Saturday.

"We've got to discuss what went wrong and prepare for the FA Cup game against Thurrock - it's a big game for the club and for the players," Chapman told the club's website.

"We need to make sure we go and to put in a performance - the players need to start the way they did in the second half on Tuesday.

Perform

"The most important thing in football is the result, but we want to perform.

"We win together, we lose together take plaudits together and take negatives together.

"In football you find out who is big enough and can take it - I have no doubt the players have enough to pull it together."

Defender Charlie Dickens is set to go out on loan to Ashford.

"He needs games and there's no point in him sitting doing nothing or playing in the U21 football.

"He's looked okay, but he is capable of a lot more. He needs to build up a little bit more confidence playing regular football.

"It's only on a month to month basis, and when the time is right we'll bring him back."
